

Aj.mercurio

2/9/22

Argumentation

Debate briefs 6

- a.) I feel this is a value argument. I know because this argument is based on values and morals on how you feel about this topic. Its not questioning rules so its not policy and its not a fact because it's not a factual statement being presented.
- b.) I would be on the opposing side of the argument.

Part 2

I oppose with the house that regrets media which depicts high school students engaging in explicit acts (drug use, sex, etc.). media that depicts high school students doing explicit acts has no impact on students/ peers that see this media. From outside research I did GraduateWay. (2021, February 20). Retrieved February 10, 2022, from <https://graduateway.com/does-watching-violence-on-television-make-people-more-violent/> I found that seeing violence on social media or on television may desensitize people to violence but doesn't make them more of a violent person. I did find that people that live with violence around them makes them more violent. After finding research that supports that social media violence and explicit behaviors has less of an impact then actually being around explicit behaviors is worse. So, there is no reason to take action against social media of explicit behaviors.